

Talking stage Masterpiece

Name: Raph Koya-Konzi Mwanza

Location: Wichita, KS

Hometown: Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex

Body type: I'm 6'4, 196 lbs., and I'm lean muscle wise, I have a wide frame.

Origin/ethnicity: originally from the Democratic Republic of the Congo, I moved to Dallas when I was 13 in 2013, I've been here since. I'm a bantu.

Character: I live y life based on a couple of guiding principles, they say good habits are hard to create, but easy to live by and it all starts by what you listen to and principles you follow. I base my life on the bible to the best of my ability so I'm on a journey of continuous improvement.

Short summary about myself: I enjoy watching/talking about basketball and football(soccer) sports wise. I enjoy playing pickleball, volleyball, and basketball though I'm retired from basketball. I love reading economics books, self-help, scientific, religious, political, philosophical and all social sciences. I rarely read fiction, but I'm down to try one if there is a good one out there. I like having discussions about almost everything and I'm always arguing for the side I'm against to better understand their reason and the flaw within it.

Career: I'm currently finishing my BA in Computer Science in the spring of 2024, I hope to move to Florida and work remotely from there, I'm down living somewhere else, but it would take further study. I have big career goals, but I'm not telling you because you have not yet earned my trust.

Purpose in life and life goals: My purpose in life is simple, it's to help people lead better lives however I can. As for my life goals, I can't currently discuss this topic as it makes me emotional, so we must build trust and a bond for you to know.

Favorite foods: I absolutely love pho and chicken biryani, and many other foreign foods. I don't really like burgers unless they're gourmet burgers.

How to win my heart: simply take me for pho or buy my favorite video game and I'd say I'm in love.